

Right off the bat, I noticed the different ways to “clear the float.” This intrigued me because I hadn’t thought that there are different levels of efficiency when fixing a problem. In my own experiences, I hadn’t come across a problem where one solution is better than another. I was taken away with how organized their teaching was of making an html website.