Don't Fear the Internet Reflection

With reading and observing this website, the videos give me a glimpse of the beginning of HTML and CSS. I believe that I learn the basics of HTML and CSS, by using `` to start paragraphs or even just writing text onto the HTML website. There are a few more pointers to like `<h1>` to `<h6>`, meaning that it makes the headers for the website, but also can change the size of the header; from big to small. I think another thing I learned is that it is more organized to make your style CSS on another file then putting it all onto the index.html file. With that in mind, you can even organize the codes into blocks with `` or giving them a class name.
